ABOUT FARMER-TO-FARMER

Since 1991, Partners of the Americas' Farmer-to-Farmer Program has been transforming lives in over 30 countries in Latin America, the Caribbean, Africa, and Asia. Farmer-to-Farmer provides technical assistance from highly skilled U.S. volunteers to farmers, cooperatives, agribusinesses, extension services, and other agriculture sector institutions.

Guyana

The 2018-2023 Farmer-to-Farmer Program in Guyana will conduct 96 volunteer assignments primarily in Regions 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 10.

Country Projects

Livestock Production & Marketing

The objective of the Livestock Production & Marketing project is to provide producers, agribusiness owners, and service providers the necessary knowledge and skills to strengthen the emerging Guyanese livestock sector. Volunteer technical assistance focuses on developing systems for traceability and certification of products and training veterinarians and technicians in best practices in animal care and management.

Horticulture Production & Marketing

The objective of the Horticulture Production & Marketing project is to improve productivity, postharvest handling, competitiveness, and resilience in the local, non-traditional horticulture sector. Volunteer technical assistance focuses on shade-house vegetable production, agro-processing, and marketing.

Increasing Productivity

Volunteers provide technical assistance to smallholder farmers to increase crop yields, improve postharvest practices, and generate greater economic returns.

Increasing Competitiveness

Volunteers work with local, regional, and export-oriented processors and agribusinesses to increase productivity, improve quality standards, and facilitate market linkages.

Building Local Capacity

Volunteers help local organizations develop stronger management, leadership, and strategic practices to foster long-term sustainability.
